

Please do not weaken the Wisconsin Do Not Call List by changing it in any way or eliminating it. Wisconsin citizens have enjoyed the relief of not being endlessly called by telemarketers since the Wisconsin "Do not Call" list has been established. The Federal Law doesn't go far enough to insure citizens from telemarketers. If one special interest group (banking) is allowed to change the law, others will follow, until the law is as worthless as the CAN SPAM act, which does nothing to protect our email inboxes from the relentless spam that pours in every day. Banks are known to sell lists of their customers to "marketing partners". They should not be allowed to profit by calling people who no longer do business with them and then selling their lists to 3rd parties.
